

CoCreate

Three Types of Consciousness Expressions

Speaker

Knowledge/Peace

A Speaker is one of the three types of consciousnesses within the world. Knowledge is gleaned from direct experiences and then turned into wisdom through the process of self-realization; self-realization is knowing the relevance and meaning of the experience according to spiritual growth.

A knowledge based individual is continually accumulating knowledge through study as well as experiences, is a continual learner, never satisfied with a single topic or concept, and dives deep into subjects finding the common thread of truth within ideas.

A speaker experiences inner peace when fully engaged in the process of turning knowledge into wisdom.

Master Builder

Creativity/Joy

A Master Builder is one of the three types of consciousnesses within the world. Creativity is the foundational aspect of the world the master builder loves to explore. This can take any form and usually involves knowing "how it works" and then "well I can do/build/make that!". They love to "invent" things and "do" more.

A creativity based individual is continually accumulating creative skills that allow them to keep learning more about creativity through different avenues which can, depending on their other potentials, be in any area of study or expression.

A master builder experiences inner joy when fully engaged in the process of creativity and the creation.

Individual

Interpersonal/Love

An Individual is one of the three types of consciousnesses within the world. Interpersonal experience is the foundational aspect of the Individual which may be through activity as well as relationships with others and nature. They love to be involved in the world and experience it to the fullest through direct contact with everything around them. This not only involves their outer experiences but also includes their multi faceted inner world.

A interpersonal based individual is continually seeking more and different types of experiences to explore. They seem more interested in the world especially through relationships. They are not one to have a desk job, but the type to desire direct contact with others and things.

An individual experiences love when fully engaged in the process of connecting with others and things within the world.